

Hello!

My name is Gerald Davis, Jr. (right) and I am currently a senior at the Prairie School in Racine, Wisconsin. I was raised in Racine by my two lovely parents and I have attended the Prairie School since pre-school. Next year, I will be attending Wake Forest University with hopes in attending medical or dental school after my undergraduate experience.

I chose to write about such a topic because parenting plays a role in everyone's life. I give credit to my mother for helping me come up with such an idea. She was reading Battle Hymn of the Tiger Mother by Amy Chua as part of her book club. I must say that I was not entirely interested in researching this topic, but it became rather intriguing as I carried on. I do not plan on becoming a parent any time soon either.
